

Dave Armitage

Dave has 32 years of railway experience. Beginning his career as a Brakeman, he promoted to Conductor and subsequently Locomotive Engineer before taking on a management role as a Road Foreman. Having had the opportunity to get involved in a change management training delivery role, Dave pursued roles where he could continue to add value through training and people development. Having spent some time delivering management development “Leadership” training, he eventually migrated back into train operations leading the Locomotive Engineer training team at a large Class 1 railway. Since leaving the railway in 2001, Dave has been consulting in the technical training field, and his company is currently contracted by Canadian Heartland Training Railway to provide day-to-day leadership with respect to business development, training delivery and instructor resources.

Dave has completed the following courses:

Managing the Training Function – Friesen, Kaye & Associates

Program Planning (CACE) – University of Alberta

Leadership Development Program – Center for Creative Leadership, San Diego, CA.

Key Performance Indicators & Statistical Process Control –
Withow Associates

Advanced Instructional Techniques – Langevin Learning Systems,
Los Angeles, CA

Labour Relations and Investigations Program – Canadian Pacific Railway

Dave is located on Vancouver Island, British Columbia.
